A Curious and New Story from a Montreal Man.

An echo of the shot fired by J. Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theatre Washington, twenty years ago, by which Abraham Lincoln was murdered, was heard in Detroit, says a Detroit dispatch to the New York Times. Thomas Casey, a typical Irishman of sixty years or more, stood in front of the opera house this afternoon intently studying the show bills that bore the name of Edwin Booth, who is playing an engagement here. He asked a man standing near him if Edwin Booth was any relation to J. Wilkes Booth. Being assured that he was, Mr. Casey repaired to the story in 1861, Booth the following remarkable story, now repeated for the first time.

In June, 1865, while Mr. Casey was an auctioneer in Quebec, a schooner called the Emma loaded at Montreal with oil for Nassau. In the cargo were seven large tanks marked "J. W. Booth" and to be called for. The schooner passed Quebec, but a short distance below that city a storm struck her and she was wrecked. The crew and officers were never seen, but the derelict was picked up by some fish sailors who claimed salvage. The goods recovered were put into the admiralty court to be sold, and Thomas Casey was the auctioneer to whom the sale was intrusted. He opened the seven tanks and found them filled with rich velvet suits, jeweled gowns, armors, helmets, plumes, and various other theatrical accessories. Old letters bearing the address "J. Wilkes Booth," and hundreds of tickets with the initials "J. W. B." were also found.

The goods were much damaged by water. For some of them there was no call, and Mr. Casey, who had been deposited to the credit of J. Wilkes Booth or his heirs, Mr. Casey had never heard of J. Wilkes Booth. Away down in the Atlantic coast, near the mouth of the American river, he made no effort to find the owner, who he then supposed, was drowned on the Emma, nor had he any interest in inquiring for Booth's relatives. In the lapse of time the boiler on which the tanks were stored did not think it was worth the trouble. Casey's endeavor to see Edwin Booth was futile. He was not in his room and no reply was deigned to a note in which the writer intimated that he might be able to impart some information of interest to the writer. Casey's only interview with Mr. Arthur Chase, Mr. Booth's manager, was equally fruitless. Mr. Chase informing Casey that the great tragedian would tolerate no allusion to or conversations about his brother on any source whatever.

The fact that the tanks were consigned to Nassau led to the belief that J. Wilkes Booth evidently hoped to escape to the Bahama islands, and there resume his profession, believing, no doubt, that his offense would be considered a crime in a foreign country. Casey is a resident of Montreal who happens to be visiting this city.

The Only One.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway is the only line running solid vestibuled, electric lighted and steam heated trains between Chicago, Council Bluffs and Omaha. The berth reading lamp feature in the Pullman sleeping cars on these lines is patented and cannot be used by any other railway company. It is the great improvement of the age. Try it and be convinced. Sleeping cars leave the Union Pacific depot, Omaha, at 9 a. m. daily arriving at Chicago at 9:30 a. m. Passengers taking this train are not compelled to get out of the cars at Council Bluffs and wait for the train to be cleaned. Get tickets and sleeping car berths at Union ticket office, 1501 Farnam st.

A Curious Old Bible.

Rev. J. A. Lambing, a Pittsburgh historian, has permitted a Pittsburgh district collector to print and sell many books which his private library at Wilkesburg contains. One of these volumes was made before the art of printing was invented. It contains about 500 pages of written matter, bound in wood and retaining its original state of preservation. The language is Latin and it was written between the years 1425 and 1430. Father Lambing, however, possesses a much finer specimen of decorative work of those old-time monks in a huge Bible, which he thinks is the oldest remaining in any form in the United States. It is a folio in size, containing about 900 pages of heavy parchment (sheep), and bears a marked resemblance to the first bibles printed by Gutenberg, when he invented printing. The bibles printed at first by Gutenberg (in 1450 and 1455) are described as "quarto in size, double columns, the initial letters of the chapters being executed with the pen in colors."

Father Lambing's Bible was printed in 1478, and is therefore one of the earliest printed books in the world. The large gothic style, and the hand illuminated work is simply beautiful. The gilt painting after this lapse of time is as clean and pretty and bright as though put only yesterday. Chemistry today is said to have discovered a way in which will maintain a red color any length of time, and here in this Bible the flourishes and initial letters in red have withstood the ravages of time for more than 400 years and are still brilliant. The monks had secured in the mixture of their paints. They became adepts at the illuminating art.

The text of the book is in the Latin vulgate, except that the Acts of the Apostle are put after St. Paul's epistle to the Hebrews. There are many corrections in the text, and many have been made to make out, even to Latin and Biblical students. The cover is of mule wood, covered on the outside with hog skin, over which flourishes and fancy stamp work have been embossed. The corners of the cover are protected by solid brass castings. Another of the same nature has been fastened to the middle of the back, and the fragments of brass clasps are still hanging to the Bible. In those days durability was aimed at in the binding far more than it is now.

Relics of Napoleon I.

Prince Victor Napoleon has just come into possession of a number of interesting relics of the first Napoleon. They consist of a complete set of his armor, the first consul used on great occasions, notably during the Te Deum sung at Notre Dame in honor of the concordat; the saddle and holster used by the emperor at Austerlitz; the cashmere girdle worn by Napoleon at the battle of Eylau; a cane that he carried in the cup, top, saucer and candlestick used in the bed-chamber of the dying emperor as well as the sheet and pillow of his deathbed; the handkerchief he used in his last moments to wipe his face; and the handkerchief, mathematical instruments he always carried.

A Pleasing Senec.

Some one has figured that there are in Denver, Colo., thirty-one millionaires whose aggregate wealth is $46,000,000, and thirty-five semi-millionaires whose wealth aggregates $17,000,000, making in all $63,000,000 owned by sixty-six millionaires.
